

To Whom It May Concern,

I thought that allowing media consolidation may result in just something like this Sinclair situation -- a television giant flexing its power to require, without comment and without rebuttal, the presentation of a one-sided, political statement by its national affiliates. This should not be happening in any degree. That is, I don't want our public agencies (read: FCC) allowing partisanship to exist in the public realm. Especially not when it is MANDATED partisanship.

I request that you pursue this issue with Sinclair Broadcast Group with the same vigor you have so recently pursued CBS over their Super Bowl broadcast. Political partisanship is one-thousand times more damaging to the nation than a bare breast; please act accordingly and prevent Sinclair from abusing the PUBLIC airwaves.

Thanks,

Steve
